What is NGSL?

The New Generation Society of Lawrence (NGSL) is dedicated to providing its membership with opportunities to pursue life-long learning, stay active in the Lawrence community, and support local philanthropic causes. Its core membership is comprised of energetic, intellectually curious adults in the Lawrence area.

Each year, many people are living fuller, longer, healthier lives. We seek increased opportunities to expand our intellectual and cultural horizons. We are privileged to live in a historically significant area and near the University of Kansas, a world-renowned research and teaching institution. NGSL's mission is to help members stay entrenched in a vibrant, intellectually stimulating environment.

NGSL partners with the University of Kansas' Hall Center for the Humanities. The Hall Center hosts lectures and events with internationally renowned authors, artists and dignitaries and offers programs for humanists of all ages.

“If you are new to Lawrence, or wish to connect more deeply with our community, you should be part of NGSL.”

What Programs does NGSL offer?

Our Program Committee works to provide popular, diverse and stimulating learning and outreach opportunities to members. A new program schedule is offered each fall and spring. Pre-registration is required for all programs. Since NGSL is not-for-profit, all programs are self-supporting. Some past programs include:

A History of Lawrence programs provide a review of the exciting heritage of our community and region including field trips to local sites of historical significance.

Meet Me at the Lied programs are behind-the-scenes looks at Lied Center shows, presentations and performances by staff from the Lied and the Lawrence community.

Out-of-town trips have included visits to the Eisenhower and Truman Libraries, art museums, ballet, theatrical productions, the symphony, and other events in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Topeka and Manhattan.

Educational programming is rich and varied, including featured KU professors, local authors and thought leaders as well as tours of new exhibits at KU's Spencer Museum of Art.

In addition to the numerous programs NGSL offers, there are also four special dinner events held each year.

How do I become a member?

The only qualifications for membership are an interest in our programs, a willingness to pay annual dues to cover our administrative costs and fees for any program in which you choose to enroll (some programs are free). Please fill out the short form on the back of this brochure and send it along with a check made payable to “New Generation Society of Lawrence”. Annual fees are $55 for a single and $100 for a couple. Send your information to:
